this morning by Messrs. Gray and Wood.

Mallory Browne, whom I first met when he was a reporter for the Christian Science Monitor, and who has been for sometime Public Affairs officer in London, came to see me to tell me he is going to Washington next week to work for the [redacted] Psychological Strategy Board.

Harold Callender came in for a talk about the European Army. I then saw Teddy White, who has been doing an article on the Embassy for the Saturday Evening Post. In view of my pending transfer, he now thinks [redacted] it will not be published, since it had been scheduled for May.

Harland Cleveland from Washington talked to me about the plans of MSA for giving economic assistance to the EDC if and when it is formed.

I had to hurry to attend dinner with E. at the Australian Embassy at 13 rue Las Cases, - a beautiful house acquired by the Australian ~~Government last year.~~ The Jessups, the de la Tournelles and many other friends were there.
